Dear Committee,

Please add this letter to the official record of these hearings

Wis Public Radio (WPR) takes pride in calling itself the oldest station in the nation. Currently, WPR spends about $7 million tax dollars annually plus about $2 million from other sources. After 80 years and millions of tax dollars spent, WPR reports having only 42,000 listeners from a statewide population of about 4.5 million people.

In comparison, the Jan. 1996 Biennial Report of Iowa Public Radio (IPR) shows annual expenditures of slightly more than $4 million tax dollars annually to broadcast more hours and reach far more listeners than WPR reaches (about 173,000 in a less populated state than Wis.). IPR also hires and trains dozens of students annually as part of their commitment to education. WPR doesn't hire or train students.

Why the tremendous difference in cost per listener between WPR and Iowa? There's probably several reasons, but we know that (unlike IPR) WPR spends over $400,000 per year on a locally produced weekly comedy program, while at the same time it cancels other locally produced weekly programs that cost less than $20,000 per year (many for less than $10,000). The canceled programs were educational and popular too.

WPR's financial records are designed to confuse but they suggest that maybe as much as half of the cost of the expensive comedy program is compensation for the program host. If that is true, then WPR is using tax dollars to make a comedian the highest paid state employee in Wis (more than a Nobel prize researcher, the U. W. President or the Governor. A $200,000 item identified only as Fishe's circle in the WPR budget may be related to the comedian's compensation.

Why does WPR have so few listeners? A big factor is that WPR is operated as if it were a private club for the management and it's so called advisory boards. When taxpayers, contributors, listeners and friends have questioned any of the questionable and arbitrary program decisions, they are given misleading information, they are patronized, insulted and ridiculed by WPR management. People don't stay listeners or friends for long when they are treated like that.

As long as WPR only has to find as few as 42,000 listeners to automatically receive $7,000,000 tax dollars per year they can irritate many of their listeners for many years before they turn off all the potential listeners in Wis.

I'm presenting you with about 60 of the hundreds of letters that taxpayers, contributors, and listeners wrote to protest the cancellation of the program About Cars. I request that these letters become a part of the official record of these hearings. The specific letters I'm presenting were written to U. W. President Katherine Lyall and/or Regents during the last 12 months. Included in this packet are some of their responses which clearly show that despite assurances, they refuse to recognize or fix an obvious problem.

This arrogant attitude and lack of accountability was clearly demonstrated at the WPR hearing when one of only three people who testified in defense of WPR delivered a message that can be summarized as follows. Taxpayers, contributors, and listeners don't count. Only their money counts. In other words, people complain all you want but we don't take it seriously as long as we maintain funding.

Committee members, thousands of taxpayer complaints, the Audit Bureau Report and Joint Audit Committee hearing tell us what is wrong. You now know there is a problem, now do something about it!!!

Sincerely,
